which are manufactured from material that meets stringent quality requirements and relevant standards for general and specific migration of elements in an acidic environment.

The tests carried out confirm that the products are safe for health and can be used for pickling and storing acidic products. Products prepared in PET jars retain flavour qualities identical to those prepared in traditional glass jars.

Thanks to the use of high-quality materials and the latest production technology, the products are transparent and retain their colour with long-term use and are odour-neutral.
